COAL WORTH MILLIONS THAT CAN BE DUG CHEAPLY FOUND IN PENNSYLVANIA

Great Body Near the Surface Makes It More Valuable Than Gold Mine.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 8 -- Coal worth millions of dollars, near the surface, is being uncovered at St. Clair. The work has been in progress for some time, although it has just become known that the find is so great it shows that some of the old time coal operators only nibbled at the vast amount of coal deposited there:

As the present discovery has been made by stripping off the surface, the coal can be mined in full daylight without any of the danger accompanying ordinary coal mining. The stripping has been a big job, involving the removal of 400,000 tons of top rock and dirt in a strip 1,600 feet long. 400 wide and reaching a maximum depth of sixty-five feet.
